in 1965, dr. charles n. millican was selected by the florida board of control to become the president of florida's newest university, florida technological university. since its conception, president millican has worked closely with the planners, contractors and fellow administrators to make ftu a top-rated institution. he has spent many hours with and has become a friend to faculty and students alike. it is for these reasons, pegasus 1970 is dedicated to president charles n. millican.

history

florida technological university conceived of a dream and from necessity. the dream—a great space university for the people of florida. the necessity—many more students desiring higher educations than there was space to put them.

the actual birth was undramatic, hidden among stacks of documents in the state capital. senate bill 125, the creation of a state university in central florida. the bill became law on july 1, 1963.

it was a university with no name, no home. it was still just a dream.

where would it be located? a number of sites were discussed by local government. a new jersey man, frank adamucci, offered 645 acres of east orange county land. he would give one acre for each acre purchased from him. the land was accepted early in 1964 and purchased along with other acreage owned by various landowners for a total of 1,227 acres. the area was described as "the most desirable site" for the university.

what would it be? the dream again—a "modern, functional space school with ten colleges where the individual student would be accented, where the identity and significance of each student would be maintained in a small college environment."

there were delays in approval of the title for the land. there were many zoning problems and insufficient money, but there was never the thought that it couldn't be done.

in september, 1965, building funds were approved.

the next month, the dean of the college of business administration at the university of south florida, dr. charles n. millican was appointed as the first president for the fledgling university.

dr. millican and the immediate staff he selected ran the still nameless university from a set of tiny offices in the old first national bank building in orlando.

the infant was growing, although it didn't look like a university. it still did not even have a name.

"space university" "east central florida university" "florida polytechnical university" even "winston churchill university." the suggested names flowed in, like well meaning relatives suggesting names for a bouncing infant.

on february 2, 1966, the name game ended. florida technological university was chosen. almost simultaneously, the shorter version, ftu was adopted, and stuck.

for nearly a year, preparations and paperwork, architectural designs and faculty hiring consumed long hours of dr. millican and his staff.

there was talk, early in 1967 that the university should associate itself with the magic of the nearby disney world project, but the idea was rejected, mainly, perhaps from the belief of the school officials that ftu would make its own name on its own merit, mickey mouse notwithstanding.

groundbreaking: march 19, 1967. the first spade of earth was turned. governor kirk was present and predicted ftu would form one corner of a "golden triangle of learning" along with california institute of technology and massachusetts institute of technology.

now trees had to share space with roads, towers and buildings. ftu began to rise like the phoenix from the ashes of unused pastureland.

not the phoenix, but pegasus, the mythological winged horse, was chosen as the ftu emblem. the motto, appropriately enough was "reach for the stars". ftu's pegasus was born april 5, 1968.

convocation and dedication of the flesh and blood university was held on september 7, 1968, and the doors swung open to the first class of students who were, after all, what ftu was all about.

in impressive ceremonies at the first baptist church of orlando, dr. millican was formally installed as president of ftu, as members of the board of regents, governor kirk, singer anita bryant and others watched. the date: november 25, 1968.

ftu was growing. freshman and junior classes were swelling. buildings were popping up like mushrooms. traditions were taking root. in november, 1968, tyes became the first sorority on campus. on february 4, 1969, pi kappa epsilon was installed as the first fraternity.

on march 18, 1969, circle k, the first ftu organization, was born. the same month walter komanski was elected the university's first student government president.

student government had growing pains, but was successful in creating more unity in the student body. so did village center activities, more sororities and fraternities.

tech surmounted expansion fund woes with the legislature, withstood an attempt to change the university's name and struck out into the important world of collegiate sports when it drew, from the basketball crazy wisconsin, a high school coach with an impressive record. eugene (torchy) clark would ignite ftu's sports program by forming a formidable first year basketball team.

on october 6, 1969, ftu began its second year of classes with its first full complement of classes.

the university's mini-history expanded along both planned and uncharted paths. growth was everywhere.

there was a small flap over nude art. a highly successful blood for peace drive that won national recognition. black students sought and were given more opportunities to study their heritage. an honors' convocation highlighted the pre-christmas scene on december 3, 1969.

motha, ftu's unique theatre-in-a-tent raised its curtain in december on the first production at the university. the show "titus andronicus."

students, faculty and staff took time out from busy schedules in april to take a look around at their environment. ftu celebrated earth day with other schools throughout a dirty, littered country. there were speeches, but also action as students and faculty rubbed elbow grease in a common cause to clean up the campus.

chronicles of history were formed. the future newspaper, wftu radio station and pegasus.

a sign of growth, perhaps a realization that ftu had become a truly general education institution came in april when it was announced that the first college split would take place. the college of humanities and social sciences divided from the pressure of growth.

culmination of the years of struggle, exploration and growth came on june 14, 1970 when 422 seniors received their diplomas at ftu's first formal graduation. astronaut john young spoke about his reach for the stars and personal challenges that face the men and women graduates.

young could well have been speaking to the students, faculty and administrators who will be carrying on the work of the university. they will be making the history and the traditions of the future.

car wreckings—followed by interment of the beasts—were a common protest against the internal-combustion engine. some students at florida technological university held a trial to condemn a chevrolet for poisoning the air; they tried to demolish it with a sledgehammer, but the car resisted so sturdily that the students finally shrugged and offered it to an art class for a sculpture project.

spirit and enthusiasm are the words for the ftu cheerleaders. in october, 1969, a squad of eight cheerleaders was chosen. this year, they traveled with the basketball team and represented the university in a number of area parades. long hours of practice have brought many rewards to ftu's first cheerleaders.

the village center board, under the supervision of the director of the village center, is responsible for the development and administration of programs and activities which serve the cultural, educational, recreational and social interests of the students, faculty, staff and alumni of ftu. the board defines policies and coordinates activities, programs and services which appeal to individual interests and which make proficient use of leisure time possible.

the village center insignia symbolically portrays the five "village centers" which are included in the original master plan for the campus. inherent in the design is a star which reemphasizes the university motto, "reach for the stars".

excerpts from a speech by astronaut john w. young delivered to ftu's first graduating class, june 14, 1970.

"it gives me great pleasure to be here in orlando to celebrate with you the first commencement exercise at florida technological university. first—to the distinguished graduates—congratulations and a hearty well done! president millican has confessed that you have all had to work like the dickens to get your degrees. the self discipline that you have acquired by working hard for those degrees and the emphasis on excellence and on the individual that florida technological university stresses are plus factors in making you the responsible citizens which our society so desperately needs." . . . "it is of deep and vital concern to us all that we begin to solve and continue to solve all the complex technical and social problems that face this nation and, in fact, the rest of the world. why is the rest of the world our concern?"

"if this is going to be the age of aquarius, we are rapidly approaching the world stage, where we were in 1776, when benjamin franklin said of the thirteen colonies 'if we don't learn to hang together, we shall all hang separately.' as in no other single instance of history, apollo XII showed us that there is hope. when all nationalities of all people of the world feel genuine concern about somebody besides themselves, there is good reason to believe that we can learn to hang together—like ben said. for the present anyway, we only have one world and one human race, and we are going to have to treat both of them better if we expect us and our children to survive. we need a new era of international understanding and cooperation. without more positive action in this direction, our better world can go down the tubes—along with most, if not all, of us." . . . "ladies and gentleman, it will take a space program type of national commitment to correct pollution. not because pollution is technically difficult to correct, but, because to correct it, we need national legislation and across-the-nation arbitration to overcome enormous political-industrial resistance before we can work this vital problem effectively. it is up to us."

"it is easy for me to identify with the more impatient members of this distinguished graduating class. nothing has ever happened fast enough to suit me. nevertheless, based on my experience, if you take your place in our society—and not against it—you will be well placed. a rebel within a cause can do great things."
 . . . "inside the establishment, we accomplish things with conferences, not confrontations; well-thought-out programming, not protesting; constructive methods of change, not clamoring, unreasoning demands for change; and we brighten our corners, we don't burn them. it is not easy to be a rebel with a cause. i know; i've been one all my life. you have to tread the thin line of pushing the establishment as hard as you can to get things done without getting thrown out on your ear. but, nevertheless, within society, you will accomplish much more in the long run."

WE CARE

Dirty air comes from cars and trash burning and industry and airplanes and on and on and on.

Well, Florida Power Corporation doesn't like it either. That's why we've spent more than $1,500,000 on air pollution control equipment in the last five years just as a start.

Because we want to breathe too.

COLONIAL PLAZA/ORLANDO

when he is silent your heart ceases not to listen to his heart;

for without words, in friendship, all thoughts, all desires, all expectations are born and shared, with joy that is unacclaimed.

when you part from your friend, you grieve not;

for that which you love most in him may be clearer in his absence, as the mountain to the climber is clearer from the plain.
